

Have you been noticing strange cloud formations lately, such as lines behind jets that remain for hours? Have you noticed sometimes there are lines 90° to those which create a grid pattern in the sky? Have you noticed the sky doesn't seem as blue as it once did? There is an explanation for all this. This activity you are seeing in the sky is referred to as "Operation Cloverleaf". It involves "high altitude aerosol spraying", also known as "Chemical Trails" or "chemtrails".

The first question this activity begs is: "What is in the aerosols they are spraying?" We learned a patent was taken out by the Hughes Aircraft Corp. for the material which is mostly aluminum, barium, and strontium. These fine-particle aerosols are sprayed out of specially prepared jets, such as the Boeing 707.

Operation Cloverleaf (and other related programs) are designed to change the atmosphere of the planet. This process is known as "Geoengineering". Incidentally, a whole new science has been created over the decades to change the fundamental nature of our planet including rain patterns, temperatures, and other aspects of the environment.

The spraying of metallic aerosols into the atmosphere poses a great issue. The geoengineers themselves admit they are not fully aware of all of the possible side-effects of this activity, but some include changes in soil pH, illnesses caused by ingestion of toxic metals by humans and animals, solar dimming, drought, heat waves, and many other side-effects.. It seems the scientists of the planet have decided to alter our planet forever, hence the name "Geoengineering".

A few recent results of Geoengineering are:

- (1) NASA reports the earth is 20% dimmer.
- (2) Emergency rooms are busier on heavy spray days with expected ailments such as respiratory distress, asthma, heart attacks, aneurysms, strokes, etc.
- (3) Diseases associated with heavy metal toxicity are on the rise, and there are many.
- (4) Plant life all over the planet is suffering . It is even being reported that the great redwoods are dying.

If you are interested in understanding why you are being sprayed, use your favorite search engine to search for the term "chemtrails". You can also watch a very informative documentary on this subject on Youtube entitled "What in the World are They Spraying".

People all over the planet are waking up to this travesty, and we hope people in our area will do the same, before any more damage is done and before any more people suffer or die from these related ailments.
