Senior DARPA Scientist Warns of Widespread LETHAL ATTACKS Upon the Public Coming From Microwave Towers

Former DARPA Senior Scientist, Dr. Paul Batcho, asserts that cell phone towers pose an intentional and immediate lethal threat against the general public of the United States.

It is an old issue, but with a new revelation by the most credible insider source to date. Recently, I was contacted by Dr. Paul Batcho. Batcho is a former DARPA senior scientist who worked at Los Alamos and held a top secret security clearance. In short, Batcho asserts that clandestine forces are purposely engaging in "acts of terrorism" against the general public through emission of dangerous frequencies from cell phone and microwave towers in the St. Petersburg/Orlando/ Tampa, Florida area.

Before launching into a revelation of the stunning claims presented to me by Dr. Batcho, let's establish his crediblity as a reliable witness.

I am a Ph.D. from Princeton University and a former scientist from Los Alamos National Laboratory in New Mexico where I worked within nuclear weapon research teams. I held a Q clearance (top secret equivalent of DoD). I have also worked on DARPA research projects as a senior scientist.

There is a technology transmitting RF signals and communications at the human brain resonant frequency bands, and it is targeting individuals and groups.

These transmissions will cause harmful health affects in the form of enhanced microwave radiation illness. It is imperative that these frequency bands be measured and verified by an official source. These frequency bands do not exist naturally, and there is a technology targeting individuals.

Cellular transmission's broadcast at 853 MHz, human brain resonance is centered around 450Mhz, and Ham radio operators are not allowed to broadcast at the 400Mhz to 700Mhz band. I would suggest a filtering at the 400Mhz to 700Mhz band on all microwave and cellular transmissions, digital filters should suffice in the near term. Civilians are being harmed by the deliberate transmissions of an established technology.

The verified measurement and existence of these RF band transmissions constitutes a terrorist act. Please advise the appropriate security office on Homeland security. This is a serious matter that needs immediate attention and it must be addressed. Please feel free to contact me.

I would be happy the discuss it.Thank youPaul F. Batcho,

Dears Sirs

I would like to bring to your attention that a technology derived from the patents listed below is being used in an illegal manner over the cellular and microwave towers in St Petersburg/Tampa/Orlando FL.

Please bring this matter to the attention of the security office and appropriate contract monitor for the technology mention within. The technology is clearly being used by a non US government group with lethal intentions on civilians.

I forwarded previous emails on my understanding of the technology. I believe this matter needs serious and immediate attention.

transmissions of signals from cellular and microwave transmission towers
The technology being used is clearly based on the methods outlined in the following patents based on microwave transmission directed at human brain frequencies.
The active technology has been in use for approximately 3 1/2 years, roughly corresponding to the expiry of the 1992 and 1994 patents funded by DARPA,
US Patent # 5,123,844. June 23rd, 1992
US Patent # 5,289,438. February 22nd, 199
These systems stimulate the brain with RF frequencies and wave forms.This is not CDMA 450MHz:450MHz-470MHz transmissions.
There is unlawful use of the various lethal aspects of the technology. The technology is active and civilians are being targeted with harmful health effects.
Please investigate the transmission of the various frequency signals in the 450 MHz range. The band from 437MHz to 478Mhz with peaks at roughly 6 MHz intervals appear to have sizable spectral energy components.

Please feel free to contact me.
I would be happy the discuss it.

Thank you

Is It Too Late?

Dr. Batcho's warnings are too late for many. Consider this excerpt from Global research.

Cell Towers Radiating Our Children

"The rollout of smart meters proceeds alongside increased installation of wireless technology and cell phone towers in and around schools in the US. In 2010 Professor Magda Havas conducted a study of schools in 50 US state capitols and Washington DC to determine students' potential exposure to nearby cell towers. A total 6,140 schools serving 2.3 million students were surveyed using the antennasearch.com database. Of these, 13% of the schools serving 299,000 students have a cell tower within a quarter mile of school grounds, and another 50% of the schools where 1,145,000 attend have a tower within a 0.6 mile radius. The installation of wireless networks and now smart meters on and around school properties further increases children's RF exposure.

Download video

Many school districts that are strapped for cash in the face of state budget cuts are willing to ignore the abundance of scientific research on RF dangers and sign on with telecom companies to situate cell towers directly on school premises. Again, the FCC's thermal effect rule is invoked to justify tower placement together with a disregard of the available studies.

The School District of Palm Beach County, the eleventh largest school district in the US, provides one such example. Ten of its campuses already have cell towers on their grounds while the district ponders lifting a ban established in 1997 that would allow for the positioning of > even more towers. When concerned parents contacted the school district for an explanation of its wireless policies, the administration assembled a document, "Health Organization Information and Academic Research Studies Regarding the Health Effects of Cell Tower Signals." The report carefully selected pronouncements from telecom industry funded organizations such as the American Cancer Society and out-of-date scientific studies supporting the FCC's stance on wireless while excluding the long list of studies and literature reviews pointing to the dangers of RF and EMF radiation emitted by wireless networks and cell towers."

Can any person actually believe that the installation of Crow as the ASU president was a coincidence? He was brought to ASU in order to establish the first degree program in sustainability.

American Universities Are Becoming RF Hell Holes

Rich Farver was a 29-year-old San Diego State University (SDSU) political science teaching assistant where he had already earned his masters degree, died of glioblastoma multiforme(GBM) brain cancer on October 11, 2008. Rich's mother, Virginia, began a quest to find out why. Virginia discovered that several students and staff were dying on the campus of San Diego State University of various cancers. Virginia was subsequently told that Rich's cell phone was the culprit. Shortly after that, she found an article entitled "Brain Cancer Cluster on the San Diego State University Campus." The light came on and Virginia met off-campus with some professors mentioned in the article. The professors told her that they had asked for a toxicology study, as there is a huge cell tower right next to the building where Farver lived and ultimately died.

Conclusion

Virginia's research and that of others like Deoborah Tavares, have revealed that millions of people have been placed at risk because of the cell and microwave towers placed on University and school grounds. Further this system is part of a larger National system of connected communications which is expanding on international basis. To date, The Los Angeles School District and the European Union have moved to forbid these practices.

When Dr. Batcho speaks of the array of cell phone towers in the Tampa/Orlando that are emitting toxic and even lethal doses of RF, he is unknowingly understating the problem. Almost every major university, not just

In nearly every major university in America, wireless carrier corporations and the various governmental alphabet soup agencies have combined to place dangerous arrays of electromagnetic towers on campuses frequently near dorms and college offices. Some of these towers are merely cell phone towers. Some towers have implications for "national security." Regardless, universities all across this country are displaying profound sense of depraved indifference towards the well-being of students, staff and faculty who live and work on these campuses. These institutions of higher learning are paid big bucks in order to accept these towers. And if these towers are not dangerous, then why do the corporations spend millions trying to disguise the towers by making them look like trees?

Let me be clear, Virginia Farver has proven beyond a shadow of a doubt that when your child goes off to college, they are playing Russian Roulette with their health. When you step out of your house, drive down the street, go to bed at night, you are at risk. There will be a Part two that discusses the specific dangers. Until then here is an interview I did with Virginia Farver on this topic.

> "Ham radio operators are not allowed to broadcast at the 400Mhz to 700Mhz band" is incorrect.
> The 70 cm ham band is 420-450 Mhz. The next ham band is the 33 cm band at 902 Mhz to 928 Mhz. So, no ham transmissions from 450 Mhz to 902 Mhz.

> Ham radio has privileges in those bands,420 thru 450 mhz. It is a commonly used band for communications. FRS frequencies are above it at 462mhz. these are the like walkie-talkies lots of people use.Not sure where this scientist is getting his ideas. Likewise,I'm not sure where scientists are getting "global warming" data when things are cooling,if anything.

ELF wave warfare against humanity has been going on for quite some time now.

Most people will never comprehend that this type of warfare is actually taking place; and those who try to expose it and fight against it, will look like fools to those who remain unaware.

May God have mercy on us.

Please research your articles before posting April 9, 2016 at 10:52 am

Dave,

Your source states that no Ham radio exists in the 420 MHz to 470 MHz band, some simple research will reveal the 70 cm Ham radio band is from 420 MHz, to 450 MHz.

http://www.arrl.org/band-plan

While emissions formats are structured (FM or packet radio, Analog TV, etc.) it is still possible for an entity to pirate signals in this band for other uses. The full spectrum in question has many users, a 6 MHz spread on certain technologies is not uncommon.

Batcho is 100% right. One of those cell towers in on Westshore Blvd. between Euclid Ave. and Elprado Blvd. When the people in the area began dying in droves I moved out. Eight deaths within 1000 Ft radius, One guy only 51 years old stood up one morning and dropped dead from a stroke. Even the ladies 3 cats next door had cancer. You could literally fell the bad energy when the were transmitting. I put a radar detector in the house and it would go off. No one had any electronic equipment to account for it. I began a surveillance of the place an found that the people running the equipment originally we doing it form an attached office right under the tower and had computer equipment in side they were using, then they moved into a house right next to the building and built a fence around the back yard that actually attached to the cell tower building, (and as everyone knows you can't attach your fence to a neighbors building). The people living in the house varied from time with different cars and license plates, like shifts. One night at 3am one of the guys goes to Manhattan Elementary school and takes out a meter and is checking the signal or its strength. Really? at 3 am in the morning? Cell towers are supposed to operate autonomously, I suspect these guys were driving some type of program affecting the towers in the area. There has been data release over the years showing that cell towers can send signals to affect the brains of humans. Hey there is a reason why there are no cell towers on military bases generally because the military knows thy can be used as weapons. You won't find on on Mac Dill AFB in south Tampa .

Josh April 9, 2016 at 1:23 pm

As a US HAM radio operator, I'm licensed to transmit in the 70cm band, ie 420 to 450MHz. That being said, the cell towers may be some kind of mind control crap as well as a phone system… a phone system that also provides for ease of being tapped by government. Minf Kontrol and surveillance! Hitler would love it.

Pesky Varmint April 9, 2016 at 1:34 pm

Where in the patents is microwave mentioned?

Ruby April 9, 2016 at 2:09 pm

This information, although not new, is of paramount importance. The depravity of our government and usage of WMD's by that government, on the American populace, has been going on for several decades. Not only is this technology included in this article lethal, the "chemtrail" and HAARP technology is considerably MORE lethal. It causes countless diseases, and countless deaths, mostly by respiratory and cancer diseases.

I don't doubt that this is going on. A former AF intel friend of mine told me back in the 70's and 80's of the mind control experiments that were going on using RF. Now 40 years later they must be so far ahead of that technology, which was amazing back then. But a few things seem a little "off". One in particular, " Ham radio operators are not allowed to broadcast at the 400Mhz to 700Mhz band." Technical grammar aside, one of the most popular bands used by amateurs is 70 centimeters, 420-450 MHz. You'd be hard pressed to find a ham who didn't own both a handheld and a mobile that included 70cm. I would think that a PH.D. delving into this so deeply would know that. Couple other tidbits in there that I'll let others point out. Like I said though, I have absolutely no doubt this is happening.

It says the 19 year old son was found walking in town by an undercover cop and appeared as though he didn't know what he had done. Although this PK boy bullied my son in church in 2009 I sense mind control played a part in the aptly timed assault. > I teach neurosciences at our medical school, conduct research in brain-behavior, brain-cognitive and brain-language relationships, and treat patients. As a former USAF comms/electronics officer during the Vietnam war, and commander of a nationwide emergency communications network which I began building in 2013, I can tell you that, unlike in the past when wars were fought on foreign soil, this one will be fought on American soil (assuming Americans still have what it takes to act, and not just talk or write). We cannot send young men to fight, suffer and die for us while we remain safely at home. When I was in the service, even though scared much of the time, we followed orders, did what seem the right thing to do. We did not allow our fear to paralyze us, mentally or physically. I readily admit to being afraid most of the time – not only for myself, but for the incredible young men in my squadron, some of whom suffered greatly or lost their lives for what we now understand was a politically and monetarily driven exercise in futility. The real heroes were the men whose names are inscribed on the Vietnam Memorial in D.C.

If you are wondering who is going to "save" us from these dastardly, diabolical, immoral and illegal activities being perpetrated upon us by a corrupt government that has spun far out of control. one has only to look in a mirror. We have reports of foreign troops stashed away at various military bases – some hidden in plain view. Between 15,000 and 30,000 Russian Spetsnaz or Spetsnaz GRU (special forces) soldiers are already here.

It's not as though the 'Patriot Act", the "National Defense Authorization Act", the construction of 800 FEMA "resettlement" or "re-location" or "internment" camps, the conversion of closed military bases in detention "camps", the unbelievable matrix of underground tunnels and cities, and the major tenets of UN "Agenda 21 (or 25 or 30) have just come to our attention withing the last few weeks. Did you not think something was up at least as far back as July 15th with the initiation of "Jade Helm 15". While billed as a "military exercise" with ridiculous excuses for its execution, it was not, in reality, a "military exercise", as many of you came to learn once you started connecting the dots. Remember learning about the "initiative" and the "referendum" in high school civics class? These are two mechanisms by which major issues are voted on by the populace before being put into law. Despite the overwhelming impact and power of many of Obama's illegal Executive Orders, when is the last time you voted on an initiative or a referendum? The fact that Obama has broken major laws of our land, and continues as our "King", that we no longer have a Congress of senators and representatives who truly look out for and protect their constituents, and we have a justice system, starting with the Supreme Court, that invariably renders decisions favorable to the military-government-corporate complex are now apparent, or becoming increasingly apparent to us all. Were we asked to vote on the establishment of the huge, and largely out-of-control DHS or its purchase of over 2 billion rounds of ammunition (enough to kill every American several times over) and guns to equip post offices, social security offices, IRS offices and other government offices (but not our military recruiting offices. That duty was taken on by Oath Keeper personnel, many if not most of whom are veterans?) Did we have an opportunity to vote on the multi-level underground highways that criss-cross out nation from Denver International Airport to Washington, D.C. to Maine and the construction of several underground cities stocked with vast amounts of food, liquids, medical supplies – even surgical suites? Did we have an opportunity to read and vote on the "Patriot Act" or the "NDAA" or any of the long series of clearly illegal "Executive Orders" issued by Obama? What say have we had in deploying our troops to Iran, Iraq, Syria, Afghanistan and, likely, places we do not know about? Where were the "weapons of mass destruction" that Bush, Jr. told us were in Iraq. Do you have any idea how many times our past 3 presidents have flat-out lied to us to justify their desired actions, and how many American lives were lost were lost because of those "false flag" events? What about the situation in Benghazi wherein the Ambassador pleaded with and begged the Secretary of State to rescue him, his family and his staff. Yet, despite his cries for help and for political and foreign relations reasons, his pleas were ignored resulting in his death, and that of his family. How many of Obama's incredibly sweeping, powerful, rights-stealing "Executive Orders" did we have an opportunity to read and vote on? Most of these, as you know, have to do with taking away not only our rights under the Constitution and Bill of rights, but our possessions as well.

However, no amount of time spent at your computer worrying or wailing about what is going on in our Country is going to make the least bit of difference. Every day that we do nothing (aside from waiting for the "other shoe to drop", e.g. Martial Law, additional, unlawful Executive Orders, the total collapse of our economy, invasions of our homes by American and foreign troops and police, etc., Obama, DHS, FEMA, NSA and a host of other federal and state agencies are planning and carrying out their plans to destroy not only our Country, but us. Think of all of the American lives that were lost throughout history because those heroes believed that they were defending the greatest Country on earth – not greatest in terms of military power, the number and size of our cities, etc., but greatest in terms of freedoms that we all enjoy and take for granted daily. Are we going to allow their sacrifices to count for nothing other than to give more power and money to those who least deserve it? So, if we continue to do nothing, all of those men and women who gave their lives or limbs or suffered other mental or physical injuries up through the present day, did so for nothing, because our current generation is paralyzed into inaction, mentally and/or physically by fear. I suppose that, if that is true, we will deserve exactly what we will get. You may be too young to remember the fairly famous line uttered by Walt Kelley's character "Pogo": "We have seen the enemy, and he is us". No one is going to "save" us or otherwise come to our aid. Just as during the first Revolutionary War, it falls to the citizens to fight, if they value and want to retain our freedoms, not only for ourselves, but for your children, grand-children and future generations. I have a new grandson. If Justus should ever ask our daughter what his grandfather did in 2016 or 2017, I don't want her to tell him that "Poppy" allowed himself to be arrested or murdered by the government, or that he fled to a neutral country for asylum, etc. When I was commissioned, I swore an oath before my Creator. That oath had to exceptions, and it has no expiration date. A very similar oath is sworn by each member of our military, all of our elected or appointed governmental officials, all of our law enforcement officers and many others in government service. In the Air Force, we had a saying: "No officer outranks a civilian". To me, that pertains to law enforcement officers as well as military officers. I think that many of us have forgotten (or perhaps never really understood) that, as American citizens, we are accountable only to our Creator. Everyone employed by the various governments (federal, state, county, local) works for us. Yet, what is your emotional reaction if a local cop turns on his flashing lights to pull you over, or if you receive a telephone message from a FBI agent asking you to return his or her call, or if a federal agent of any kind shows up on your doorstep. Assuming you have done nothing illegal, do you ground you emotional reaction with the cognitive realization that YOU are the American Citizen (with all the rights and privileges that that entails) and that these people, even those who carry badges and guns, work for you – to insure your safety and that of our Country. I doubt it. My guess is that there is an immediate visceral and emotional reaction that can be described as fear. We have to ask ourselves "Why?"

From working the the area of emergency communications for the past several years, I have learned a few things. The first is that the state of militia communications in our Country is in a shambles. While building the nationwide network, I was asked by several militia comms officers if they could use our network to carry messages from one part of their state to another. A militia in southern California was unable to communicate with its counterpart in northern California, and so it went. At first, I agreed to do this. The goal of the nationwide network was to put a means of calling for help in the hands of as many Americans as possible (e.g. via CB, FRS, MURS or GMRS hand-held or mobile radios). And this became a reality. At the same time, I interfaced with other more specialized, nationwide networks such as those operated by the American Red Cross and the Salvation Army. My point is, that if you think that all of these thousands of "militia" members are going to rise up and come to our aid, you may want to reconsider that idea. There is not national plan to combine the dozens, if not hundreds of militias or groups like Oath Keepers, 3%ers, Modern Militia Movement, the American Resistance Movement, Patriots for America, etc., etc. They have no leadership (everyone wants to be a "commander" or a "general" and run the entire show) which means that many Americans cannot "get along", and compromise at a personal level for the greater good. Our militias have not organization, no chain-of-command. Neither do they have a plan. Their "squirrel guns" and "bird guns" are no match for .30 caliber or .50 caliber machine guns, Gatling guns, tanks and field artillery pieces. Those who plan to "bug out" will be easily located and either killed or arrested. Of all of the millions of pages of e-mails touting the bravado of our "keyboard commandos", none of it amounts to anything more than an emotional rush for the author. As a close friend and active duty Lt. Col. in intelligence told me a couple of weeks ago, "You know I can't say a whole lot, but I will tell you that the fuse is very short". Another active duty friend, a senior NCO, told we recently which aircraft are being fitted with extremely wide band, spread-spectrum jamming devices intended to disable all telephonic and internet communications. Sadly, these devices can also be used to affect the CB, FRS, GMRS and MURS frequencies I mentioned above. One of the most potent and deadly blows to our Country will have nothing to do with communications (with the exception of loss of power for radios, and most amateur radio operators – all in networks – have back-up power supplies for this eventuality) is the destruction of our power grids. Two EMP (electro-magnetic pulse) bombs detonated at an altitude of 50 miles above our coasts will destroy our power grids. While Congress has had legislation ready to approve to "harden" our grids, as most other countries have already done, they have refused to pass it, even though the cost to do so has come down dramatically over the years. The claim that it would "cost too much" is simply a lie.

Our networks consist of licensed amateur radio operators who have several distinct advantages over the other services mentioned above. They are capable of world-wide communications. This can be accomplished either by ionospheric propagation or satellite relay of signals. We have access to a wide variety of frequencies on different "bands" (not unlike "AM" or "FM" or "TV" bands). We can communicate with public service (police, fire, EMS) if that proves to be safe and practical. We have methods of defeating attempts at jamming our signals. Once the average, unlicensed American citizen can contact an amateur radio operator (called a network controller), that amateur operator can forward the message or summons for help appropriately.

However, if most Americans remain "asleep" as opposed to being "awake" regarding what is taking place in our country, no radio network, no matter how elaborate, has any meaning. If we are incapable of setting aside our petty, largely meaningless differences and come together for the common good and future of our Nation, and our progeny, then, indeed, all is lost and, regardless of religious beliefs or affiliations, our racial or ethnic prejudices, American, as we have know it, will be lost as opposed to re-building it in a way that makes it better than it was before the Bushes and Obama.

The patriotic group the "Three Percenters" derives its name, as you may know, from the fact that, during the first Revolutionary War, only about three percent of colonists were willing to go up against what was then the most powerful military force in the world. The rest went about their daily business, drank ale, and let the others do their fighting for them. However, once the war was won, everyone wanted to be known as a "Patriot".

Historical studies at several Universities have shown that is only 3.5% (or 5%) of the population of a country comes together and causes the ouster of a corrupt government, they will be successful every time. We saw this happen in recent history in Egypt wherein Egyptians descended on Cairo – not once, but twice – to cause the ouster of two corrupt governments. I am not advocating any form of conflict to oust Obama and take back our Country. By law, impeachment seems, to me, to be the first choice. That process begins, as you know, in the House of Representatives. However, in 2014, when the majority of seats in the House were "open", we missed our chance to elect representatives who favored removal of Obama. Now, he is in little danger of impeachment by the House or trial by the Senate. Another possibility involves us coming together an Americans and causing the removal of the Obamas from OUR White House, the removal of all senators and representatives and the padlocking of their office doors with armed guards present. In case you have not figured it out, there is no longer a "Republican" and a "Democratic" party in our Country; we no longer have a Congress that represents us and our best interests. Instead, we have a group of individuals who are interested in advancing only their power and their wealth through dishonesty and greed. Our court system, beginning with the Supreme Court, does not exist to provide us with an opportunity for "justice". The corrupt court system, and the corrupt criminal justice system, exist to further the goals and interests of the government, the military, and large corporations.

I realize that this is lengthy. Thank you for taking the time to read it.

dahboo77 just released a video on his youtube channel about mobile spy towers.

I would like to hear Dr. Paul Batcho's take on this http://www.defenseindustrydaily.com/jlens-ramps-up-hard-raytheon-wins-13b-contract-01500/

These mobile towers are part of this raytheon system supposedly they go a contract because the U.S. is open to cruise missile attack. HA HA HA Please surveil us harder so we can be protected more right. Congnitive Dissonance.

Dave, Thank you for the research and presentation of this information. It is in agreement with Scripture concerning "end time events".
