Country legend Merle Haggard, who died of a lung infection (double pneumonia) (<http://www.wnd.com/2015/11/merle-haggard-died-of-a-lung-infection-double-pneumonia/>) in his song, “What I hate”: (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=yT33FKsG3c8>) “What I hate is looking up and seeing chemtrails in a clear blue sky today.” criminals/print/ Print

Several months ago, I wrote a column titled, “Why are geo-engineering researchers being stonewalled?” (<http://www.wnd.com/2015/11/why-are-geo-engineering-researchers-being-stonewalled/>) In it, I gave an array of evidence from scientists that geoengineering is, specifically, covert chemtrailing is taking place in the skies above us and unbeknownst to us.

For those who are unfamiliar with the subject and stratospheric lunacy, let me reiterate a few definitions:

Geoengineering is the artificial modification of Earth’s climate systems through two primary technologies: Solar Radiation Management, or SRM, and Carbon Dioxide Removal, or CDR.

CDR (https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Carbon_dioxide_removal) technologies include “bio-energy with carbon capture and storage, biochar, direct air capture, ocean fertilization and enhanced weathering,” according to Wikipedia.

SRM (https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Solar_radiation_management) technologies “seek to reflect sunlight and thus reduce global warming. Proposed examples include the creation of stratospheric sulfate aerosols.”

Stratospheric sulfate aerosols

(https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Stratospheric_sulfate_aerosols_\(geoengineering\))) “create a global dimming (https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Global_dimming) effect [that] has made them a possible candidate for use in solar radiation management (https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Solar_radiation_management) climate engineering (https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Climate_engineering) projects to limit the effect and impact of climate change (https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Climate_change) due to rising levels of greenhouse gases (https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Greenhouse_gases). Delivery of precursor sulfide gases such as sulfuric acid (https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Sulfuric_acid), hydrogen sulfide (https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Hydrogen_sulfide) (H₂S) or sulfur dioxide (https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Sulfur_dioxide) (SO₂) by artillery (<https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Artillery>), aircraft and balloons (<https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Balloons>) has been proposed.”

Chemtrailing (<http://www.geoengineeringwatch.org/geoengineering-definition-of-terms/>) is the “public’s term for the classified [covert] and ongoing artificial modification of Earth’s climate systems using reflective nano-materials (aerosols) to reflect sunlight. The aerosols are dispersed via jet aircraft trails that expand into reflective artificial clouds.”

Sarah Zielinski, an award-winning science writer and editor, wrote a piece in December 2015 for the Smithsonian, titled, “Airplane Contrails May Be Creating Accidental Geoengineering.”

In the article, Zielinski explained, “Geoengineering (<http://www.smithsonianmag.com/smart-news/no-one-trusts-geoengineering-pretty-soon-its-not-going-be-choice-180949367/?no-ist>) involves the manipulation of an environmental process in such a way, usually deliberate, that it affects the Earth’s climate.”

Zeilinski cites Charles Long (<http://cires.colorado.edu/index.php?cID=1824>) from the NOAA’s Earth System Research Laboratory in Boulder, Colorado, who reported at a press conference this past week at the American Geophysical Union Fall Meeting

(<https://agu.confex.com/agu/fm15/meetingapp.cgi/Paper/59257>) in San Francisco: “This haze is caused by airplanes, and it is gradually whitening blue skies. We might be actually conducting some unintentional geoengineering here.”

Many other scientists would say – as we shall see in a moment – intentional geoengineering.

Long went on to explain, “Its existence demonstrates yet another way that humans might be altering the climate system, and you can see this with your own eyes.”

I know, because my wife, Gena, and I have seen it in the skies over our own Texas ranch.

Chuck Norris provides real solutions to our country’s problems and a way to reawaken the American dream in his best-seller, “Black Belt Patriotism.”
(<http://superstore.wnd.com/Black-Belt-Patriotism-How-to-Reawaken-America-AutographedHardcover?promocode=story>)

Kevin Trenberth (<http://www.cgd.ucar.edu/staff/trenbert/>) of the National Center for Atmospheric Research concluded, “It seems quite possible that [Long is] seeing something that’s real.”

Long still calls the haze “a mystery,” but at the moment primarily blames air traffic exhaust and other aerosols as the most likely culprits of those particles.

But is the origin of it all so unintentional and innocent? Or are there deliberate sky criminals who are also chemtrailing above us with other chemical agents?

Long himself is puzzled how certain areas around the country like one in Oklahoma have significant sky whitening yet don’t get as much known air traffic.

When Snopes (<http://www.snopes.com/nasa-lithium-chemtrails-conspiracy/>) was investigating the recent accusations that NASA was spraying lithium (the anti-manic psychiatric medication) into the atmosphere and, hence, onto Americans (<http://www.inquisitr.com/3020485/nasa-admits-to-dosing-americans-with-lithium-antipsychotic-drug-through-spraying-in-the-upper-atmosphere-chemtrail-conspiracy-theorists-claim/>), the liberal fact-finding website even had to confess that, “Buried among the tinfoil were a few actual facts: it was true that a 2003 study (<http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pubmed/12656420>) examined the feasibility of mass vaccination by air.”

The actual 2003 abstract (<http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pubmed/12656420>) from the National Center for Biotechnology Information (NCBI), a part of the U.S. federal government's National Library of Medicine – a branch of the National Institutes of Health, reads:

The feasibility of using aerosol vaccines to achieve mass and rapid immunization, especially in developing countries and disaster areas, is being assessed on the basis of current available information. The aerosol mode of vaccine introduction, which best follows the natural route of many infections, may first lead to development of immunity at the portal of entry, and may also induce a more generalized defense. The recommended optimal way of introducing an aerosol vaccine is nasal breathing, which is more suitable for geriatric and pediatric populations, permits use of greater antigen volumes, and allows easier monitoring of results. Technical requirements for ideal aerosol vaccines and delivery systems, possible adverse effects, and cost-effectiveness are other issues addressed. Several thousand human subjects have been aerosol-vaccinated over a period of many years in Russia with live-attenuated strains against many diseases. Extensive field trials in South America with aerosolized live-attenuated measles vaccine have also been successful, and excellent results have been reported with pilot projects employing inactivated or live-attenuated aerosol influenza A vaccine. We conclude that aerosol immunization seems a promising method of vaccination. Although some basic information is still lacking, this method has already been used successfully in large populations and has therefore passed the phase of initial feasibility evaluation.
[Emphasis added by me.]

Over the past 13 years since the study, does anyone think it's possible that such mass vaccinations or immunizations have occurred by air in trial locations in the U.S.?

How many plane-dropping chemical cocktails have already been sprayed around the world in the name of securing public health?

When the heads of the Center for Disease Control and Prevention publicly sound the alarm that the Zika virus is "scarier than we initially thought" (<http://www.usatoday.com/story/news/politics/2016/04/11/scarier-than-we-initially-thought-cdc-sounds-warning-zika-virus/82894878/>) and the mosquito transmission ranges have increased (<http://www.latimes.com/opinion/editorials/la-ol-0415-zika-funding-20160414-story.html>) from 12 states to 30 in just weeks, does anyone think there's discussion of the NCBI 2003 study?

Whatever the intent or justification, and whether or not the purpose is for mass vaccinations or some other devious plot, if you don't believe there's some smoke-screening in the sky trails above you, I have a London Bridge to sell you in Lake Havasu City, Arizona.

Supreme among the evidence for the smoke and mirrors in the skies above and in halls of Washington is the work of Dr. J. Marvin Herndon, an American interdisciplinary scientist who earned his bachelor of arts degree in physics in 1970 from the University of California, San Diego, and his Ph.D. in nuclear chemistry in 1974 from Texas A&M University.

Herndon wrote an article that was reviewed and published on Aug. 11, 2015, in the International Journal of Environmental Research and Public Health (<http://www.mdpi.com/1660-4601/12/8/9375>), titled, "Evidence of Coal-Fly-Ash Toxic Chemical Geoengineering in the Troposphere: Consequences for Public Health." Again, the abstract from the article says it all:

The widespread, intentional and increasingly frequent chemical emplacement in the troposphere has gone unidentified and unremarked in the scientific literature for years (<http://www.geoengineeringwatch.org/massive-us-senate-document-on-national-and-global-weather-modification/>). The author presents evidence that toxic coal combustion fly ash is the most likely aerosolized particulate sprayed by tanker-jets for geoengineering, weather-modification and climate-modification purposes and describes some of the multifold consequences on public health. Two methods are employed: (1) Comparison of 8 elements analyzed in rainwater, leached from aerosolized particulates, with corresponding elements leached into water from coal fly ash in published laboratory experiments, and (2) Comparison of 14 elements analyzed in dust collected outdoors on a high-efficiency particulate air (HEPA) filter with corresponding elements analyzed in un-leached coal fly ash material. The results show: (1) the assemblage of elements in rainwater and in the corresponding experimental leachate are essentially identical. At a 99% confidence interval, they have identical means (T-test) and identical variances (F-test); and (2) the assemblage of elements in the HEPA dust and in the corresponding average un-leached coal fly ash are likewise essentially identical. The consequences on public health are profound, including exposure to a variety of toxic heavy metals, radioactive elements, and neurologically-implicated chemically mobile aluminum released by body moisture in situ after inhalation or through transdermal induction.

Interestingly, on Sept. 2, 2015, just two weeks after it was published, Dr. Herndon's entire 16-page scientific article was suddenly and completely retracted (<http://www.mdpi.com/1660-4601/12/9/10941/htm>) from the journal based upon only two chemical composition questions and an overarching explanation with no further explanation than this: "The language of the paper is often not sufficiently scientifically objective for a research article."

Really?

It's time again to wake up, America. I'm not Shakespeare, but something is definitely rotten in the state of Denmark.

Or as another music legend, Prince (<https://www.collective-evolution.com/2016/04/22/video-of-prince-talking-about-chemtrails-the-new-world-order/>), who just passed away this past week, sang in his song, "Dreamer": "While the helicopter circles us, this theory's getting' deep, Think they're spraying chemicals over the city while we sleep? From now on I'm staying' awake, you can call me a dreamer too, wake up, wake up."

There are a lot of naysayers "out there" who adamantly assert that "chemtrails" do not exist...well you blind fools, here is a link that SHOULD shut you up...(it wont, but it should).

Here's the scoop; The Globalists NWO have a telltale fingerprint exposing the deeds they perpetrate. As in Saul Alinsky's rules for radicals, they create a crisis and then a solution. Everything from Fast and Furious gun running creating a crisis to promote a gun grab in America to the Zika Virus (patented by Rockefeller Foundation in 1947 creating weaponized mosquitoes for depopulation) where mandatory "vaccines" are now budgeted in Obama 1.6 Billion Dollar Budget to the areal spraying of Chemtrails, a "climate crisis" they create in which a thermal layer is formed heating the ground below. The solution? G20 Climate Summit imposes tax on business collecting free cash from producers, blaming it on their Co2 emissions. Follow the money. Main sponsors are Gates Foundation, Rockefeller's and more. Don't believe Chemtrails are real? Pull your head out of the sand and YouTube Search; "Rosalind Peterson addresses the UN on Chemtrails And Geoengineering" If it's front row at the UN, no more denying. Time to wake up.

"Cloud Seeding:" et-al.

So? Weather modification is a real thing. So are atomic weapons. I don't see any evidence that "der-gubement" is using either one to the scale people are describing.

Ortaine Devian → Meccaanon • 8 months ago

Back before many people were alarmed, I checked into the formulas for cloud seeding. At the time, they openly discussed the use of barium & aluminum. Those sites have vanished now. The patent hasn't.

<http://www.google.com/patents/...>

"Aluminum has been long known to be neurotoxic, with mounting evidence that chronic exposure is a factor in many neurological diseases, including dementia (Alzheimer), autism, and Parkinson's disease."

As far as the amount of spraying being done, you can look into the skies & see it. Maybe you aren't, but I am old enough to remember what contrails look like and these most definitely are not.

2 ^ | v • Reply • Share ›

Meccaanon → Ortaine Devian • 8 months ago

Of course you are not really addressing the issue. How about you find a single instance of mass cloud seeding operations actually happening? It should be easy for a fine intelligent person such as yourself. Just go to an airport and start talking to aircraft maintenance people, loadmaster, pilots etc. You will find a big fat

I'm not concerned with "seeding". I am concerned about CHEMtrails, not CONtrails. Big difference. The contrails go away quickly, the chemtrails make artificial clouds and are full of aluminum and barium. Don't try to obfuscate. Go to geoengineeringwatch.org.

1 ^ | v • Reply • Share ›

Sally Ban Geoengineering Parke ➔ Pancho • 4 months ago

Contrails apparently don't even exist. I believe that too. I see so many planes at low altitudes leaving short, non persistent trails nowadays.

^ | v • Reply • Share ›

Meccaanon ➔ Pancho • 8 months ago

And yet YOU brought it up! Also; geoengineeringwatch fails on so many fronts. It makes a bunch of claims, then it fails to actually present evidence for any of them other than "Oh look!
Chemtrails!" And that's what you are using as your prime argument?

" The contrails go away quickly. the chemtrails make artificial clouds and are full of aluminum and barium."

Says who? Contrails have been around since planes started flying in the upper atmosphere. There are photos and movies of "persistent contrails" dating back to World War Two. I used to see them when I was a kid (this would be back in the 1960s.) Chemtrails is just a nice "mystery sandwich" around a well understood phenomena that's been around for generations. Chuck Norris is just displaying his ignorance by climbing about this clown-car.

Just because you cite Dunning–Kruger doesn't make you immune to it.

^ | v • Reply • Share ›

Meccaanon ➔ Ortaine Devian • 8 months ago

I don't believe that I even implied that. However it is true that people who are very sure of themselves over incorrect information often "have no idea of what they don't know." They become poster-children of the Dunning–Kruger effect. Chem-trail believers are a prime example. These are folks who know little or nothing about weather, contrails or how aircraft work (not to mention air commerce and regulation.) But they insist on asserting all kinds of absurd notions about weather modification and mass spraying by thousands of aircraft. And Chuck Norris is an actor. The only thing he's an expert in is convincing people he's something that he's not!

Meccaanon ➔ Ortaine Devian • 8 months ago

Quite obviously you have the hots for Chuck Norris so there's not much I could say to convince you that he's full of sh%$.

You on the other hand think that a Wikipedia article on cloud seeding proves that thousands of "heavy" aircraft seed the atmosphere on a daily basis. Operating out of secret locations and serviced by tens of thousands of folks who in some magical and serviced by tens of thousands of people who in some magical way don't interact with the rest of the US population. I can see where our logic train has derailed and (again) I can also see this as clear evidence that the Dunning–Kruger effect is real.

I'd say "have a nice life;" but there's probably a chemtrail plane overhead to screw that up for you.

^ | v • Reply • Share ›

Ortaine Devian ➔ Meccaanon • 8 months ago

To even suggest such a thing is completely gay. Your squirm factor is so Dunning–Kruger that I'm almost embarrassed for you, but not quite. Here we go again, Wikitime:

"Project Cumulus was a 1950s UK government initiative to investigate weather manipulation, in particular through cloud seeding experiments. Known jokingly internally as Operation Witch Doctor, the project was operational between 1949 and 1952."

Hi Takiwa, i regularly visit Contrailsscience and Metabunk (both run by Mick West) as well as geoengineeringwatch & climate viewer. I haven't found any propaganda on Mick West's sites. What in particular is propaganda? Contrails can persist and spread in the right atmospheric conditions. If you don't trust Mick West then there are other very trusted resources you can check regarding what conditions are required for contrails to persist. There are also a few old books that contain pictures of persistent contrails. It is good not to rely on one source anyway you should always check as many sources as you can and then make an informed decision. It is important to understand also how the atmosphere can be super saturated with ice and how that affects contrails being produced. There are a few different websites that show weather soundings at different levels such as earth.nullschool i.e. where I live in Australia it is usually around -40 degrees at jet cruising altitude however I have noticed in California it is more often -50 degrees which is more conducive to contrails forming but there are many other factors beside temperature.

Mr. Norris's article is full of holes of misleading and misinterpreted information that in no way supports his theory the government is using contrails to distribute chemicals on the populous. The fastest way of discovering this is to go the sources he uses to support his article. Snopes article, he claims admits to "Buried among the tinfoil were a few actual facts: it was true that a 2003 study examined the feasibility of mass vaccination by air.", actually shuts down the theory the government is spraying the population with lithium. It should also be noted that the lithium metal used in the studies of the earth's atmosphere is not in the same chemical form of lithium that is used as an antipsychotic medicine.

In the rare occurrences when it becomes necessary to control large and devastating insect invasions, chemicals used such as malathion is sprayed from prop planes with special sprayers, and not through the exhaust of jet engines. It would also be practically impossible to inject anything through a jet engine to form the contrails without completely changing or destroying the original chemical form of any chemical injected into the exhaust contrails of jet engines.

In short, don't take for granted what the authors write in their articles without reading the so called supporting articles they claim support their position.

I grew up on an orchard, and although it's now organic, we sprayed for the first 15 years. Our orchard wasn't huge, about 6 acres, or 2.42 hectares (that's roughly 4.5 american football fields) but let's just say 2.5 hectares. The sprayer we used held about 4500 liters, and would use about 1.5 tanks to spray the orchard, so that's about 6750 litres for the whole orchard. The actual dimensions of the orchard would be something like 1ha x 2.5ha, or 100m by 250m. A 747's wingspan is about 60m, and from engine to engine is around 50m. One can assume that the "grids" your planes are flying aren't going to overlap within 100m, so to be realistic (HA!) we'll assume that the jet is only going to make one pass over the orchard. If we are incredibly conservative, and assume that a chemtrail is only 1/20th the effective volume of an orchard sprayer, you would need around 13,500 litres to make a 10km long chemtrail. A 747 has a top speed of 920km/h and a max takeoff payload of 154 tons. If we assume that the spray mixture is roughly equivalent in weight to water, that would mean that the maximum distance of a contrail is about 110km, or about 7.5 minutes of release at top speed. These figures are for a plane that is completely empty, and would be spraying 1/20th the volume of an orchard sprayer. Most of you have not likely seen the mist generated by an orchard sprayer, but it is not all that visible, 1/20th of the normal volume would be remarkably hard to see from up close, let alone from 10km to 13km away. So, here we have some numbers for y'all to mull over. Consider how much spray would need to be emitted from a plane to be visible, and how unlikely it is that they would design this spray to be visible in the first place. The fact of the matter is that there is no way for a plane to carry the volume necessary to do what you say they do, which is demonstrated by the basic math shown above which made assumptions in favour of chemtrails.

Great job exposing these concerns. Western Journalism Center is a moderator at my site so they should be more than familiar with the data we have assembled and it backs your article 110%.

Yay Chuck!! We're not in Kansas anymore. Remember the talks in school about over population - they were talking about us. These psychopaths have decided it's up to them to do something about it. Denmark exposed: tiny.cc/gwi
