Why would the Rothschilds be so interested in owning the largest and most recognized weather modeling organization out there? Why would E.L. Rothschild LLC wish to have a controlling interest in the world's leading provider of interactive weather graphics and data services for television, web, and mobil? Because when you are involved in climate decision-making geoengineering programs, you must also control the "forecast" models to cover your tracks.

The scope and scale of the global spraying of our skies can hardly be comprehended. SAC (stratospheric aerosol geoengineering) and SRM (solar radiation management), the mass engineering of supporting structures for these programs is mind bending. What is even more difficult to understand is how all of this happens in plain sight, and almost none seem to connect the dots.

Defense contractor “Raytheon” does all the “forecast” modeling for the National Weather Service and NOAA

(<http://geoengineeringwatch.org/html/weatherreportedbyraytheon.html>). Lockheed Martin does the modeling for the FIA (<http://www.aer.com/government/national-security>). Since both of these private defense contractors are up to their necks in weather modification patents and programs, the “forecasts” are more or less the “scheduled” weather. Now, with the Rothschild’s acquisition of the dominant private modeling organization, the control of weather “modeling” seems complete. This control of “forecasts” and “graphics” provides for the constant visual conditioning that makes the population more likely to accept the constant spraying and manipulation of our weather as “normal”. When the nightly weather “forecast animation” matches what the public sees in the sky, right down to the upper level “haze” or “overcast” from the constant spraying, all seems to correlate, so not more is questioned. When the “forecasters” predict a hurricane will make an unprecedented 90 degree turn, and it does, nothing seems wrong. When they say there will be “heavy wet snow” at 40+ degrees (<http://www.geoengineeringwatch.org/heavy-wet-snow-is-now-often-the-normal/>), and there is, all appears OK. The global elites have, it seems, covered the bases.”

Well-known for its advanced technologies, the company pioneered weather computer graphics systems worldwide and continues to innovate, recently releasing the industry's 1km high-resolution forecast data set available on-air, online, and for mobile devices.

Weather Central has used its hallmark scientific approach to secure customers that include network-owned and operated television stations, independent television stations, newspapers, websites, and individual businesses and consumers. From its headquarters in Madison, Wisconsin and its regional offices in Hong Kong, Beijing, and Berlin, the company's systems provide weather to hundreds of millions of viewers through customer installations worldwide, including those in the U.K., Canada, Spain, Brazil, Mexico, and other countries.

Weather Central is also the primary provider of weather technology and delivery to broadcast stations in China.

Beyond its core North American and international media operations, Weather Central is expanding its business for the enterprise, consumer, and mobile markets. The company's offerings for the B2B segment include precise weather products and solutions for a broad base of customers, including insurance, commodities and energy companies, hedge funds and governments. Weather Central has also developed an extensive suite of consumer-facing digital products that will launch across online and mobile platforms as part of the company's MyWeather® brand in the next few months.

CEO of E.L. Rothschild LLC, Lynn Forester de Rothschild, commented on the acquisition, saying: "Weather Central is a world-class company that is number one in its category, with a history of success, a talented team, and a very bright future. Their products, which are the world's most precise for broadcast, online and mobile forecasting, allow companies and individuals unparalleled insights. Whether designed for an insurance company wanting to alert its customers of an impending hailstorm, a hedge fund trying to monitor agricultural commodities, or a consumer planning a vacation, no one has better information than Weather Central. At E.L. Rothschild, we will build upon Weather Central's current success, and to develop the company's existing international presence, and also be focused on enhancing Weather Central's position as a digital leader in the consumer space." Juan Matus | Dutch Anarchy

Chairman of E.L. Rothschild LLC, Sir Evelyn de Rothschild, added: "As a family, the Rothschilds have always been dedicated to the utmost quality of our products and service. With respect to our investments, we focus on entering into long-term partnerships with people who share our values. As weather becomes more extreme around the planet, with greater human and financial ramifications, we believe that Weather Central will play a major role in mitigating damage and improving lives. This is important to the Rothschilds, as it is Weather Central. We are proud of our new partnership with them."

Terry Kelly, Weather Central's founder and CEO, stated: "Much has changed since we launched Weather Central more than 35 years ago, but our core passion for innovation, customer service, excellence, and vision is stronger than ever. The world today is facing new weather shifts due to climate change, and with an increasingly mobile population, the ability for consumers to obtain highly accurate and personalized information about the weather more important than ever. With our scientific knowledge and technological edge, we've established a business that is top-ranked in the broadcast market. With E.L. Rothschild, the sky is the limit for Weather Central as we look to expand our success internationally and prepare to launch exciting new digital offerings for consumers.”
