One of the most famous cities in the United States, sprayed via aircraft in the middle of the night. Website post with .gif animations here: <http://dutchsinse.tatoott1009.com/305...>

March 4th going into March 5, 2014 — A series of large “aerosol” sprays, done via aircraft, settling out over LAS VEGAS METROPOLITAN AREA without their knowledge.

Multiple aircraft leaving man made clouds which were then imaged, and pulsed by the National Weather Service via their NEXRAD RADAR stations, seen for multiple hours via multiple stations across Nevada, Utah, and Arizona.

They spray here in Lincoln, NE almost every night. We've only seen the sun for two half-days in the past two months. People are very depressed and discombobulated and animals are struggling to stay alive. Can't imagine putting in a garden this year only to have it die like last year along with all our bees.

Cassandra and Jim, Yes, it makes me very sad to see this too. I have had problems with my gardening, trees dying, and my horses seem subdued and depressed since we were ambushed by a dark, unmarked military type jet spraying at very low altitude (approx. 10-12K ft.) May 2012. The animals seem to know that something is wrong. My horses lived happily and contentedly on this farm for their entire lives and since being sprayed seem dull and lackluster. They USED to roam the pastures happily and even the once lush grass is being taken over by weeds, moss, and odd lot ground cover. The hay that I am buying since Aug. 2012 has strange discolorations in it of maroon, a sort of neon purple, and black; some of which clearly can be seen tiny speckles and dots that look like fine mist from a aerosol paint can. The hay has come from different places; a mixed grass of bermuda and fescue baled at a neighboring farm the summer of 2012 and also again in 2013 shows the exact same thing. Some alfalfa orchardgrass mix from western Kentucky baled 2013 has alfalfa which is discolored to an orange pinky color which I have NEVER seen before (and I have been looking at hay for 40 yrs.) and a bermuda grass from yet another field in northwest Ga. 100mi. from here also shows the purple discoloration. I have spent the last 2 yrs. wasting valuable time picking thru the hay to remove the poisoned portions that I can pull out as I would NEVER knowingly feed poison to my beloved animals, even though they are likely eating it on the grass and breathing it in as well. The sick b#s#r#s that are doing this need to be brought to swift justice for these crimes against us all. If others living in farming communities are also seeing this discoloration in their hay crops I would like to know if this is being seen nationwide or worldwide. If so, its a pretty sure thing this is falling from the skies. Thanks.

I live in upstate NY. Same thing the last few years. Nothing grows or barely grows in my garden and most of the tree tops are dying and not as many leaves. I notice the majority of trails are sprayed out within 1 day of every storm. Soon after the entire sky is hazed over. The weather channel can stick their storm names right up their asses too. I'm probably exposed to bad things being I plow snow for a living in winter and stuck out there as it falls.
